

Polypectomy is the commonest therapeutic procedure performed during colonoscopy specially in children. We have experience of removing polyps in children as small as 1yr and also in elderly. Occasionally the polyp removed has later been found to be malignant on histopathology but majority of the polyps are benign. Routine followup colonoscopies are needed to check for formation of more polyps later in life.